Professor in the First Year Experience and Humanities or Social Sciences, beginning in fall 2024 for an initial appointment of two years with the potential for renewal. Candidates must hold a Ph. D. in a humanities or social sciences discipline such as history, philosophy, English, comparative literature, African American studies, gender studies or one of the social sciences and must demonstrate a strong commitment to supporting student success.

The successful candidate will possess experience teaching at the undergraduate level in the candidate's field of expertise and will be responsible for:

- Teaching courses in their disciplinary or interdisciplinary area of expertise, including courses in the Foundations in Writing and Critical Inquiry program, administered by HASS.
- Teaching six sections Stevens's 1-credit First Year Experience course, introducing students to college life and promoting student success, administered by the Office of the Provost and the Division of Student Affairs. The course addresses topics such as personal wellness, inclusion and belonging, career exploration, time management, ethical decision-making, and leadership development.
- Contributing to the academic enterprise of Stevens and HASS through service to our unit and our students.

The School of Humanities, Arts & Social Sciences (HASS) at Stevens values diversity and seeks candidates who can contribute to a welcoming climate for students. Stevens is an NSF ADVANCE institution committed to equitable practices and policies. We strongly encourage qualified women and minority candidates to apply.

Stevens Institute of Technology, founded in 1870, is located in Hoboken, NJ, directly across the Hudson River from New York City. Stevens students, faculty, and partners leverage their collective real-world experience and culture of innovation, research, and entrepreneurship to confront global challenges in engineering, science, systems, and technology management. HASS contributes to the mission of Stevens with programs that engage in research and creative activity at the intersection of science, technology, the arts, humanities, and social science in ways that benefit society.

Candidates interested in applying should prepare an application that includes a letter of intent, current C.V., statement of teaching philosophy, and the names and contact information for three references. Please combine all materials into a single document (MSWord or PDF) for submission. Review of applications will begin on January 15th, 2024 and continue until the position is filled.
