A Lecturer is a full-time employee who teaches and provides student and learning support services during the assigned periods. Ten-month lecturers teach 30 credits per year; twelve-month lecturers teach 39 credits per year. The Lecturer holds a strong commitment to teaching; maintains office and advising hours for students; actively participates in the university community; and does related work as required. This is a non-tenure track position that may be renewed on an annual basis. Teaching assignments and related responsibilities may include day, evening, weekend and online courses. Interest or experience in using advanced instructional technologies to improve the teaching/learning process is highly desirable. Courses may be taught at the Union campus and/or Kean Ocean in Toms River, New Jersey or other locations. All Lecturers may be required to teach General Education courses. Positions are effective for the fall semester.

College of Liberal Arts

School of General Studies

Philosophy and Religion - to teach classes in Philosophy and Religion, both at the introductory and the advanced level. Master's degree in a related field and a minimum of one year of teaching experience at the post-secondary level is required. Experience in both fields is preferred.

General Studies/Advising - to teach transition courses with a primary responsibility for academic advising of first year students. The successful candidate will also work with other faculty and administrators in the School of General Studies and throughout the university to develop and implement advisement strategies. Master's degree in a related field and a minimum of one year of teaching experience at the post-secondary level is required. Professional experience in advising and supporting students in higher education settings is preferred.

Contact: Dr. Karin Beck, Acting Associate Dean, at gejobs@kean.edu for both positions.
