The minimum educational credential required for the applicant is a M.A. in Communication, or a related field, with an emphasis on media production and broadcast. Candidates with a Ph.D. in Mass Communication or Communication with a focus on media production or broadcasting are preferred. Degree must be completed by the time of application. This is a fixed-term, non-tenure track appointment with the possibility of reappointment. Full-time faculty normally teach four courses per semester. The successful candidate will have college teaching experience, media industry production experience, and a commitment to university service and public outreach. Previous experience in advising and mentoring students is preferred. A familiarity with a wide range of media production practices and tools is required.
