interdisciplinary scholar and are particularly interested in scholars who employ mixed methods and work in one or more of the following areas: indigeneity, sexuality and the state, legal studies, science studies, or countries outside of the United States.

The Department of Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies at Washington University in St. Louis has strengths in African American studies, queer of color critique, and health, and we are interested in a scholar who can add new areas of study to the department while complementing existing strengths. The duties of this position include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses; conducting research and other scholarly activities and performing departmental and university service and other duties assigned by the University. The normal teaching load is two courses per semester. Diversity and inclusion are core values of Washington University, and our aim is to create inclusive classrooms and environments in which a diverse array of students learn and thrive.

Qualifications

Candidates should demonstrate an ability to teach required core courses at the undergraduate and graduate levels in feminist theory or queer theory. Candidates must have completed their Ph.D. by June 30, 2025. Candidates for the rank of associate professor should have an outstanding academic record of research, publication, teaching, and service commensurate with tenure at that rank.

Application Instructions

Applications should be addressed to Marlon M. Bailey and submitted through Interfolio (<https://apply.interfolio.com/152310>). Applicants should submit a 1) letter of interest; 2) a current curriculum vita; and 3) three letters of reference. For full consideration applications should be submitted by October 15th, 2024. Applicants should be prepared to send a writing sample and teaching portfolio promptly upon request.

Each year Washington University publishes a Safety and Security brochure that details what to do and whom to contact in an emergency. This report also publishes the federally required annual security and fire safety reports, containing campus crime and fire statistics as well as key university policies and procedures. You may access the Safety and Security brochure at <https://police.wustl.edu/clery-reports-logs/>.
