Position description

The Department of Spanish and Portuguese at the University of California, Berkeley, seeks applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position in Luso-Brazilian Studies, focusing on cultural and intellectual production in Brazil and/or Luso-Africa from the 19th century to the present.

The position entails broad competence in literary and/or cultural studies related to the Luso-Afro-Brazilian world, demonstrable either through formal study or publication record, and excellence in teaching. The successful candidate will teach a broad range of undergraduate and graduate courses.

We welcome applicants whose research spans a variety of topics and approaches, including, but not limited to, Afro-diasporic cultural forms and currents of postcolonial thought, comparative studies between the Luso-Afro-Brazilian world and Latin America and/or Asia, environmental humanities, gender and sexuality studies, Indigenous cultural production, and visual studies. We are particularly interested in candidates whose portfolio shows a commitment to interdisciplinarity.

We are an open, collegial and inclusive department that supports all faculty to develop their strengths and interests. Department faculty participate actively in UC Berkeley's abundant interdisciplinary programs and initiatives, including the Program in Critical Theory, the Berkeley Center for New Media, the Townsend Center for the Humanities, the Center for Latin American Studies, Gender and Women's Studies, among others. All department faculty teach and mentor both graduate and undergraduate students and are given opportunities to teach courses on a wide variety of topics and approaches. Our programs are specially designed for highly motivated students with a passion for other languages, literatures and cultures, for imaginative approaches to these and for careful crossing of traditionally defined geographic, linguistic and disciplinary borders. As a department, we deeply value multilingualism, nonconformity to binary gender, and peoples and groups whose citizenship status or ethnic, racial and class background has been marginalized.

The department is committed to addressing the family needs of faculty, including dual career couples
